THE 'FORCES' BEHIND SPIRIT SALES

*"Growth is never by mere chance; it is the result of forces working together."
- J.C. Penney*

According to the Iowa Alcoholic Beverages Division's Fiscal Year 2005 (FY05) statistics, Iowans are mixing more cocktails and shaking more martinis than ever before. Liquor sales reports show that distilled spirit sales were up nearly 10 percent in FY05, which ended June 30th. The Division recorded sales of $146.8 million at wholesale, compared to $133.7 million a year ago, a $13.1 million increase. The FY05 year-end total marks a decade of annual sales increases that began subtly in 1995 and has escalated dramatically in recent years.

By examining statistics and trends in the liquor industry, I can attest that the explosion in liquor sales is not "by mere chance." Numerous factors can be attributed to the annual growth in liquor sales. As such, I will take a moment to review a few of the "forces working together" to drive liquor sales upward.

I. Trading Up

A primary catalyst of increased sales dollars has been consumers' tendency to "trade up," meaning higher priced, premium spirits are selected in place of less expensive brands. Liquor can be classified as an "affordable luxury," a product that, even at its premium quality, is financially within reach of most consumers. Simply put, many consumers may not be able to afford a Mercedes or a country club membership, but most all of them can afford a top-shelf spirit.

The trade-up tendency is supported by the comparison of dollar sales to gallon sales. While dollar sales were up 9.77 percent in FY05, gallon sales trailed with only a 6.23 percent increase. The separation in numbers, 3.54 percent, illustrates that although consumers aren't drinking much more, they are spending more money on their favorite beverage.

As the growth of liquor profits generates more tax dollars for the state, the Division has taken initiative to take advantage of the trading up trend by adding more premium and super premium products to its portfolio. With a 50 percent excise tax on distilled spirits, the profit margin is greater on the sale of more expensive products.

The Division further courted the trade up phenomenon with the Variable Mark-up Rate (VMR) in the vodka category (ILQ February 2004). The VMR ranges from 40 percent to 60 percent in two-point intervals – 40 percent for the super-premium vodkas and 60 percent for the value brands. The VMR yields a price compression that encourages consumers to trade up to top-shelf spirits. While consumers can enjoy a better brand of vodka for just a few dollars more, the trade-up behavior allows the Division to collect more tax dollars without a corresponding increase in consumption.

II. Flavored Spirits

The recent emergence of a diverse array of flavors in the spirits world is another driving force behind surging liquor sales. Currently, the Division offers more than 100 flavored products – mostly in the rum and vodka categories – up from 68 selections two years ago. Flavored spirits have exploded onto the scene, expanding the horizon of drink menus beyond the traditional liquor-and-soda combination and paving the way for the martini's return to fashion. A consumer who doesn't prefer the taste of ordinary vodka, for example, may now be enticed by the infinite variations of mixed drinks with flavored vodka.

III. Beer Sales

The recent wave of flavored and premium spirits hitting the marketplace has helped generate a stylish identity for distilled spirits – perhaps, statistics show, at the expense of beer. Aggressive marketing campaigns by the principle liquor suppliers have helped influence consumer preference by promoting spirits as a stylish, low-carb alternative to beer. While beer still holds the majority of the overall alcohol market in Iowa with an average consumption rate of 36.1 gallons per year (versus 1.69 gallons of liquor per year), sales have tapered off in recent years and have begun a slight recess. In FY05, the Division collected taxes on 74.05 million gallons of beer compared to 75.23 million gallons in FY04 – a decrease of .24 percent. The addition of “malternatives,” or fruity flavored brews, low-carb beers and imports to the market has helped soften the decline.

IV. Demographics

Finally, the growth of the liquor industry has been fueled by demographics. The 21-to-29 year-old age group – the largest single consuming demographic – has helped push spirit sales as well. That age group, which has been growing at a rate of 2 percent per year and is expected to continue to do so until 2010, will likely remain a principle factor in continuing the liquor sales trend. The old adage that “one generation drinks what the previous generation didn’t” appears accurate.

V. Closing

The Iowa Alcoholic Beverages Division has continuously studied the economic trends that drive liquor sales. While it would never promote the sale of distilled spirits, the Division certainly needs to understand the recognizable trends in the beverage alcohol industry and the potential impact to society.

As I noted earlier, as an “affordable luxury,” liquor has a unique niche in the marketplace. Considering current trends and economic conditions, the Division projects continued growth in liquor sales for the foreseeable future. It is important to note, however, that the “growth is never by mere chance,” but on the other hand, “the result of forces working together.”

IowaABD.com Web Feature: 18 Years of Liquor Sales

Love the Taste of Fruit? Reach for Your Snifter!

The luscious taste and aroma of ripe cherries, raspberries, strawberries, blackberries, plums, apricots, peaches, pears, and apples is as close as your brandy snifter. Just choose a brandy flavored with your favorite fruit, pour a generous amount into a glass snifter, hold the bottom of the glass between two fingers in your upturned palm, and swirl it gently to allow the warmth of your hand to gradually warm the brandy and release the rich bouquet. Sit down in your most comfortable chair, relax, and take time to savor the full-bodied aroma and taste. Flavored brandies do indeed live up to their nickname eaux-de-vie—"waters of life"!

You can also enjoy the rich taste of these specialty beverages in mixed drinks as well as in foods. For a simple but elegant dessert, scoop ice cream into snifters and drizzle one or more flavored brandies over the top; garnish with fresh fruit. For a more spectacular treat, try Cherries Jubilee (please see the recipe below).

Cherries Jubilee

1-1 1/2 teaspoons grated orange peel
1/2 cup fresh orange juice
1/2 cup sugar
1 (1 pound 14 ounces) can pitted Bing cherries, drained
1/2 teaspoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon water
3 tablespoons cherry-flavored brandy
1 quart vanilla ice cream

Combine the orange peel, orange juice, and sugar in a saucepan; cook, stirring constantly, over low heat until the sugar dissolves. Add the cherries and simmer, uncovered, for 5 minutes. Remove the pan from the heat; drain, reserving the liquid. Return the reserved liquid to the pan.

Combine the cornstarch and water in a small bowl; stir until smooth. Stir the cornstarch mixture into the reserved liquid, and bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Reduce the heat and simmer for 1 minute.

Add the cherries and cook over low heat, stirring gently, until the cherries are hot. Remove from the heat and pour the cherries and sauce into a metal serving bowl.

Pour the brandy into a small saucepan and warm it slightly over low heat. Pour the warm brandy over the cherries and ignite. Serve the cherries and sauce, flaming, over vanilla ice cream.

American straight whiskey—both bourbon and Tennessee whiskey—is increasing in sales in the U.S. and abroad. On the home front, straight whiskey upped volume by 2.2 percent to more than 13.4 million 9-liter cases nationwide in 2003, according to the Adams Liquor Handbook 2004. In the control states, straight whiskey growth was similar, up 2.1 percent in 2003.

Significantly, exports from Kentucky and Tennessee have risen over 60 percent since 1992 and 26 percent over the past five years alone. Foreign sales now constitute a significant source of revenue for American whiskeys. Last year, more than 8.8 million 9-liter cases of bourbon and Tennessee whiskey were sold abroad.

Big, Complex Flavors

It's little wonder why our indigenous whiskeys have sparked the imagination of enthusiasts at home and around the world. Bourbons and Tennessee whiskeys are loaded with big, complex flavors and have about the most captivating aromas in the business. Indeed, superpremium brands are surging ahead at an annual rate of about 16 percent, mirroring the national trend toward upscale consumption. This is further borne out by the fact that lesser known, popular-priced bourbons continue their slight but steady decline.

So what's behind the trend? "American whiskey is reinventing itself and communicating more effectively to consumers," observed Ken Weber, global brand director for Buffalo Trace Distillery. "Today, a number of distillers have gone back to the small-batch method that places a premium on producing high-quality whiskey. The reality

Whiskey or Whisky— The Difference an “E” Makes

All whisk(e)ys are distilled from grain. It's the type of grain(s) as well as the filtering and aging materials used to produce the whisk(e)y that determine whether it is bourbon, Canadian, Tennessee, Scotch, Irish, corn, rye, straight, blended, or other type. The difference between whiskey and whisky depends on who is producing it—Americans and the Irish make whiskey; Canadians and the Scots make whisky.

By all indications, American whiskeys will continue to grab an increasingly larger share of the popular limelight. Their mixability, affordability, and easy-to-appreciate character seem to be what consumers are looking for.

is that these whiskeys cost more to produce, however, consumers have shown a willingness to pay more for these outstanding products. Their drinkable characters and rich flavors are extremely appealing.

Contributing to the growth in the category is that American whiskeys are highly mixable spirits. Chris Morris, master distiller of Woodford Reserve, noted that American whiskeys have a tremendous range of flavors due to their mash bills and the maturation in new barrels. “Bourbons in general have sweet aromatic notes and a depth of flavor that make them quite mixable,” Morris said.

One of the intangibles behind their increasing popularity is that there's little pretense or snob appeal to bourbon or Tennessee whiskey. One doesn't need a refined, well-educated palate to appreciate their assertive character. And, in general, bourbons and Tennessee whiskeys are affordable as well.

Will American Whiskey Prosper?

By all indications, American whiskeys will continue to grab an increasingly larger share of the popular limelight. Their mixability, affordability, and easy-to-appreciate character seem to be what consumers are looking for. In addition to straight up, where is the category heading?

Industry professionals stressed that creating new superpremium products offering consumers genuine points of distinction will grow in importance.

“American distillers need to continue searching for the perfect whiskey,” stated bourbon veteran Ken Weber. “This will entail creating vintage bottlings and special releases.”

All in all, excitement and enthusiasm is pervasive. Master Distiller Chris Morris, who has made bourbon his life's work, is especially optimistic about the future of the American whiskey category. “Twenty years from now this category will be stronger, healthier, and held in even higher esteem around the world thanks to the groundwork of quality and innovation that is being laid today. 🍷

At Iowa's 'Great Lakes,' The Ritz floats to the top

By Derek Lippincott

Taylor Taylor's motor never stops running. She's high-strung, she says. A workaholic. She's a social butterfly that endures late nights and early mornings. She doesn't get tired because, well, she doesn't have time to.

Such is life as owner of The Ritz, one of Iowa's most reputable nightspots.

The Ritz is situated in Arnolds Park on the land bridge that separates the Okoboji Lakes. Anyone who has ever been to Iowa's "Great Lakes" has undoubtedly driven by and seen the marina full of boats and the deck packed with customers. Taylor has been a part of that scene every summer day for 17 years, and she's loved every minute of it.

"I don't know what it's like to be slow," she said. "We're busy through lunch and dinner with food and then we go straight into the night. I'm obviously blessed to have such great lunch, dinner and late-night."

TOP: The Ritz owner Taylor Taylor said her staff is a major reason for the restaurant's success. ABOVE: Bartenders mix between 800 and 1,000 of the bar's signature fish bowl drinks every summer. The drinks are served in a half-gallon fish bowl full of ice.

The atmosphere is great too, especially when the sun is out and the weather is hot. The breeze blows across Okoboji Lake and cools the patrons on the deck while beach umbrellas shade them from the sun. Cold drinks from the bar also help cool the customers, and The Ritz staff keeps them coming. Taylor makes her rounds, chatting with locals, exchanging small talk with tourists and joking with her employees.

Having a location on the water, she said, isn't the only key to maintaining a successful bar and restaurant.

"We've been here so long – 17 years this summer – and I think that speaks for itself," Taylor said. "You can't pick your clientele; the clientele picks you. But I think if you have a fun atmosphere and a fun staff, you get a fun crowd."

Doug and Barb Lewis, who own a vacation house on the lake and frequent The Ritz during their summer vacations, agree that the bar's ownership and employees are what give the establishment its supreme reputation.

"You have everybody from little old ladies and little old men to bikers coming in here for a good time," Doug Lewis said. "They're all here for one reason – to have fun. Everybody is welcome and everybody gets along. (Taylor) runs a great bar here. She really does."

The boats begin circling around The Ritz's marina early in the evening looking for a place to tie up on the bar's walk-up dock. As the sun sets, customers sail in and the music is kicked up. Many patrons choose The Ritz's specialty fish bowl drinks, a half gallon fish bowl filled with ice and one of the bar's special drink recipes – and a bunch of straws for a boatload of drinkers. It's a scene Jimmy Buffet would be proud of.

Eventually, the deck and the indoor bar area are packed to the gills, and Taylor is right in her element.

"I'm always around friends," she said. "I'm always around people, and for the most part, the people that hang around here are always in a good mood.

"The weather this summer has been awesome for us," she said. "We fill up every night and it's great."

But the busy nights appeared to be in jeopardy a year ago when rumors began circulating that The Ritz would be torn down and replaced with condominiums. For a period of a few months, a land dispute had the future of The Ritz in limbo. Customers, both young and old, pleaded with Taylor and the other property owners to keep the establishment running. They printed t-shirts, they drank more fish bowls than ever before and they showed up in droves to the bar's three annual charity events.

The dispute was eventually settled, and today, The Ritz stands unscathed between Iowa's "Great Lakes." Signs are posted throughout the restaurant notifying customers of the resolution. T-shirts that read "The Ritz is closing" are now worn by the staff as a form of irony. The Ritz' future is as bright as the Okoboji summer sun.

"We're not going anywhere," Taylor said. "This place won't be closing until I get tired of it."

Luckily, The Ritz has an owner that doesn't tire easily.

ABOVE: The Ritz is packed with customers that arrive both by land and by water during summer evenings. Owner Taylor Taylor said the bar and restaurant is busy from open to close. "I don't know what it's like to be slow," she said. "We're busy through lunch and dinner with food and then we go straight into the night."

"You can't pick your clientele; your clientele picks you. But I think if you have a fun atmosphere and a fun staff, you get a fun crowd."

Visit One of the Past's Great Cocktail Palaces!

Step back in time at a re-creation of one of the great cocktail palaces from the late 1800s at the Museum of the American Cocktail, which opened in New Orleans in January 2005. Established by a "global network of the most passionate and talented bartenders, collectors, historians, and writers on the subject of drink," the museum features eye-catching exhibits on the colorful 100-year history of the American Cocktail, including ingredients, inventors, Prohibition-era literature and music, and cocktail memorabilia.

In addition to exhibits, the Museum of the American Cocktail offers an informative monthly newsletter, "The Cocktillian Gazette," as well as entertaining seminars on mixology presented by experts in New Orleans and other cities. The museum's founders also plan to offer a library of classic cocktail books, and the publishing division will bring classic books "back to life" with versions annotated by modern authorities.

You can visit the museum Tuesday through Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at its temporary location on the second floor of the New Orleans Pharmacy Museum at 514 Chartres Street. The founders and members are currently raising funds for a permanent homeplace for the collection. [As I make it a point, never to publish anything (under my editorial head) but which I can explain, I shall not hesitate to gratify the curiosity of my inquisitive correspondent: Cock tail, then is a stimulating liquor, composed of spirits of any kind, sugar, water and bitters it is vulgarly called a bittered sling, and is supposed to be an excellent electioneering potion inasmuch as it renders the heart stout and bold, at the same time that it fuddles the head. It is said also, to be of great use to a democratic candidate: because, a person having swallowed a glass of it, is ready to swallow any thing else.

AFTER A COUPLE OF YEARS OF STUMBLING, TEQUILA IS OFF AND RUNNING AGAIN.

The histories of the United States and Mexico have been inextricably entwined since the early days of both countries. In the 19th century there were land and border issues that were ultimately resolved with the transfer of large portions of land in what are now the states of Texas, Arizona, California, and New Mexico. But regardless of where the border lay, the cultural influence of Mexico on California and the Southwest has been undeniable. . . . Mexican-inspired food has become one of the most popular cuisines in American restaurants and has become ubiquitous on the menus of America's family-style chain restaurants. And the influence carries over into the beverage portion of the menu as well. According to polls of bar and restaurant owners, the margarita has been the most popular cocktail in America for well over a decade.

Much like the way Mexican cuisine has evolved as chefs have experimented with the basic idea, so has the margarita. Once strictly lime flavored, there are now recipes that call for all kinds of fruit variations (mango, strawberry, tangerine, cranberry, et al.). Instead of generic triple sec, many trade-up margaritas use Grand Marnier, Cointreau, or another orange-flavored liqueur to further vary the taste profile. The one ingredient that hasn't changed is the primary one—tequila.

After dramatically outperforming the rest of the distilled spirits industry for more than a decade, tequila suffered a setback in 2000 and 2001 due to a shortage of agave. This in turn caused a dramatic increase in production costs resulting in higher prices. Unable to secure a supply of product at a bargain price, a number of lower-end brands dropped out of the market as a result. The tequila supply situation seems to have stabilized, and the category appears to be back on the growth track.

But even with the temporary setbacks the category has experienced, the growth pattern over the last few years has been impressive. According to Adams Handbook Advance 2004, [the 2003] total tequila consumption was up 6.4 percent nationally. On a relative growth basis, no spirit category can rival the performance of tequila over the past 15 years. Total consumption, which was only 4.4 million 9-liter cases in 1990, had risen to 5.9 million cases in 1997 and reached its highest point ever with more than 7.6 million cases in 2003.

Enjoy the Fresh Taste of a Margarita

The basic margarita features tequila, lime juice, and triple sec, but fruit liqueurs, fresh fruit, and other ingredients may be added. Margaritas can be either shaken with ice or mixed in a blender with cracked ice for frozen variations. Serve this classic mixed drink in traditional margarita glasses or large cocktail glasses. Chill the serving glass, moisten the rim with lime or lemon juice, and dip it into either coarse salt or a mixture of salt and sugar. Garnish margaritas with a slice of lime or appropriate fruit for fruited variations.

Basic Margarita

*1½ ounces white or gold tequila
½ ounce triple sec
Juice of ½ large lime
Pour all of the ingredients into a shaker half-filled with ice; shake vigorously. Strain the mixed drink into the chilled, salted serving glass.*

Frozen Margarita

*2 cups cracked ice
1½ ounces white or gold tequila
½ ounce triple sec
1 ounce lime or lemon juice*

Put the ice in a heavy-duty blender and pour in the remaining ingredients. Blend until slushy but still firm; pour the drink into the chilled, salted serving glass.

Frozen Margarita with Fruit

*2 cups cracked ice
1½ ounces white or gold tequila
½ ounce triple sec
1 ounce lime or lemon juice
Raspberries, peaches, bananas, or other fresh fruit cut into small pieces
1 ounce fruit liqueur that complements the selected fresh fruit
½ ounce sour mix*

Put the ice in a heavy-duty blender and add the remaining ingredients. Blend until slushy but still firm; pour the mixed drink into the chilled, salted serving glass.

Score a Touchdown with Your Guests

You can score a touchdown with your next party—and have as much fun as your guests—if you plan ahead, keep food and beverages simple, and do most of the preparations a day or two before the get-together. Since your refrigerator will probably be full of food the day of the party, have several coolers, clean galvanized tin tubs, or other suitable containers filled with ice for cold beverages. Use plastic plates and either plastic or paper cups to avoid breakage and make cleanup easier. Strategically place a number of trash containers where people will be sitting or eating so they can easily dispose of their plates and utensils. And remember to clean up as you go—you will be much happier and more relaxed if you don't face a lot of cleanup after your guests leave!

Plan food that can be prepared a day or two ahead of time. Try some of the crowd-pleasing recipes below in addition to your tried-and-true favorites.

One-Dish Layered Salad

Make this salad the day before serving.

- 1 head lettuce, torn into bitesize pieces, or 1 package mixed salad greens, torn into bite-size pieces
- 1 small package frozen tiny baby or English peas, uncooked
- 3-4 green onions, thinly sliced
- 4 hardcooked eggs, sliced
- 2 cups mayonnaise or sandwich spread
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 2 tablespoons wine vinegar
- About 8 ounces shredded cheese
- About 10 bacon strips, cooked and crumbled

Layer the lettuce, peas, green onions, and egg slices in a large bowl. Combine the mayonnaise, sugar, and wine vinegar; mix well and spread over the top of the layered ingredients. Sprinkle the cheese and crumbled bacon on top. Seal the bowl with plastic wrap and chill for at least 12 hours for the flavors to blend.

Bourbon-Flavored Ham

Bake the ham a day or two ahead of time and store it in the refrigerator. Slice the ham thin and serve it with a variety of breads and rolls with your favorite condiments.

- 1 to 1½ cups bourbon
- 1 cup brown sugar
- 6 cloves, slightly crushed
- 2 tablespoons grated orange peel
- Fully cooked smoked ham, skinned

Combine all of the ingredients in a medium bowl and mix well; spread the mixture on the ham. Bake the ham as directed on the packaging, basting during the last half-hour of cooking. Let the ham cool and store in the refrigerator.

Red Wine Barbecue Sauce

Brush this sauce on the food every 20 minutes during grilling.

- 1 cup dry red wine
- ½ cup red wine vinegar
- ½ cup olive oil
- 3 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
- 1 finely chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 tablespoon orange zest
- 2 cloves minced garlic

Combine the wine, vinegar, oil, Worcestershire sauce, onion, sugar, and orange zest in a saucepan. Bring the mixture to a boil, reduce the heat, and simmer partially covered for 25 minutes (the sauce will not thicken while it cooks; it remains quite thin). Remove the pan from the heat and add the garlic. Store the sauce in the refrigerator.

Kahlúa-Flavored Brownies

- 1 stick butter
- 2 ounces unsweetened chocolate
- 2 cups sugar
- Dash of salt
- 2-3 eggs (use 3 to make more cakelike brownies)
- ½ cup Kahlúa or other coffee-flavored liqueur
- 1 cup flour
- 1 cup semisweet chocolate chips
- 1 cup chopped pecans

Preheat the oven to 325°. Melt the butter and chocolate in a saucepan over low heat. Remove the pan from the heat and, using a spoon rather than an electric mixer, stir in the sugar, salt, eggs, Kahlúa, and flour. Fold in the chocolate chips and pecans.

Pour the batter into a greased and floured 9 x 13-inch pan. Bake for 30-35 minutes; be careful not to overbake.

Harvey Wallbanger Bundt Cake

- 1 package yellow cake mix
- 1 small package instant vanilla pudding
- ½ cup of vegetable oil
- ½ cup vodka
- ¼ cup Galliano
- ¾ cup orange juice
- Confectioners' sugar

Preheat oven to 350°F.

Combine all of the ingredients except the confectioners' sugar, and beat for 4 minutes with an electric mixer. Pour the batter into a well-greased and lightly floured Bundt or tube pan.

Bake for 45-50 minutes. Let the cake cool for 15 minutes before removing it from the pan. Just before serving, dust the top with confectioners' sugar.

Bar Tips: “Portable” Home Bars

Having a home bar makes entertaining quick and easy. If you don't have space for a built-in or free-standing bar, consider getting a “portable” one on wheels that folds up for convenient storage. Or get a large, multiple-use work island or sideboard on wheels that can be moved about easily. Check out home, garden, and recreation stores as well as online catalogs to find a “portable” home bar that meets your needs.

You'll be ready to entertain guests anytime if you keep the following basic supplies on hand either in your home bar, a cupboard, or storage containers:

- rocks, collins, cocktail, margarita, beer, and wine glasses (shatterproof or regular glass)
- a variety of alcoholic beverages and mixers
- napkins and coasters
- nuts, pretzels, small flavored crackers, and other simple snacks
- and a bag or two of party ice.

Also make sure you have all the following basic tools you need for preparing and measuring ingredients as well as mixing drinks:

- bottle opener
- corkscrew and wine bottle stopper
- ice bucket or other suitable container
- ice scoop or tongs

- jigger (holds 1½ ounces), pony (holds 1 ounce), and/or standard measuring glass
- measuring cups and spoons
- mixing glass
- shaker
- strainer
- stirrers
- drink recipes (bartender's book, electronic guide, or Internet access to Web sites)

Let Guests Serve Themselves at a Bloody Mary Bar

Making a Bloody Mary is simple: Just put fresh ice in a chilled glass, pour in tomato juice seasoned to taste (or your favorite ready-to-use mixer), add vodka (or gin, rum, or tequila, if you prefer), and stir with a leafy stalk of celery.

Encouraging guests to serve themselves is simple too: Just set up a Bloody Mary bar! All you have to do is put the ingredients on a serving table along with directions for mixing the drink “from scratch” (see the traditional recipe below) or with a ready-to-use mixer (see product labels). Also put a shaker (for people who prefer their drink shaken rather than stirred), a jigger/pony/or standard measuring glass, measuring cups and spoons, and other basic bar tools on the table.

At least two hours before your guests arrive, place the serving glasses in the refrigerator. About 15 minutes before they arrive, fill the chilled glasses with ice water. Dump out the water when you “open” the bar.

Stock your Bloody Mary bar with:

Vodka
Gin
Rum
Tequila

A variety of Bloody Mary mixers ranging from mild and smooth to hot and spicy

And/Or
Tomato juice
Freshly squeezed lemon juice
Tabasco sauce
Worcestershire sauce
Celery salt
Dried or fresh chopped dill
White pepper
Black pepper
Horseradish
Other desired seasonings
Fresh celery stalks with leaves for garnish

TRADITIONAL BLOODY MARY

4-6 ounces tomato juice
2 ounces vodka
1-1½ teaspoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Several dashes of Tabasco sauce
1 teaspoon freshly grated horseradish squeezed dry, if desired
Pinch of white or black pepper
1-2 pinches celery salt
½-1 teaspoon dried or fresh chopped dill
Celery stalk

Combine all of the ingredients except the celery stalk in a shaker with ice; shake gently. Pour (strain, if desired) the mixed drink into a serving glass; garnish with a celery stalk.
